Year Suspension of War Debts Is Ask by Hoover

Only Objection Expected to Come From the French

England Agrees With the American President Action Is Necessary

GERMANY IS HAPPY
Senator Borah Declares Eventually Part of Debt Must Be Cancelled

Crisp Caraway JONESBORO, Ark.—(P)—Senator Caraway said Monday he thought some adjustment of war debts was essential, "but if America is to forego very large payments I believe foreclosures on farm mortgages by the Federal loan banks should be suspended for one year to help agriculture."

Must Act Independently
WASHINGTON, June 22.—(P)—Secretary of State Stimson said Monday in an international conference is out of the question if President Hoover's moratorium proposal is to have the desired effect.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—(P)—President Hoover over the week-end laid before the nations of the world a proposal to suspend all payments of war debts for a period of one year.

France Alone Objects
While President Hoover's proposal remains to be confirmed by the American congress, the gesture from the United States has been warmly received by most of the nations except France.

The main French view seems to be that efforts to help Germany regain her economic security are all right providing there is no interruption of the 100-million-dollar annual payment unconditionally guaranteed France for the destruction of her provinces during the war.

Paris observers say that if France proves the stumbling block to the moratorium and the revival of world trade, it will be because the Chamber of Deputies, notoriously provincial in its point of view, still lives and thinks in terms of World War days.

England Favors It
The English leaders without exception have approved of President Hoover's proposal, but some of them express doubt as to whether a one-year suspension will be enough.

Germany Is Delighted over the president's proposal. The German president, von Hindenburg, cabled Mr. Hoover a message which the White House did not disclose.

Bulletins

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—The Arkansas Supreme Court Monday held unconstitutional the act of the last legislature providing for refunding out of tolls the taxes collected for building the Red river bridge at Index, Miller court. The court declared that act was local legislation.

ST. JOHNS, New Brunswick.—(P)—A fire of conflagration proportions swept the West St. Johns waterfront Monday morning, causing damage expected to mount into the millions. Practically the whole harbor facilities were wiped out. Estimates of the loss range as high as $10,000,000.

Debt Move Sends Stock Prices Up

Stocks Gain $2 to $15—Cotton Up $3.00 Per Bale

By The Associated Press
President Hoover's proposal for the suspension of war debts and reparations payments was reflected in a strong upswing on the stock markets of the world Monday.

Stocks on the New York Exchange advanced $2 to $15 a share. Cotton in New Orleans and New York advanced $2.50 to $3 a bale.

Wheat rose 2½ cents a bushel in some cases.

Similar activity resulted in Berlin, Paris, London and other world markets.

May Save Germany
LONDON, England.—(P)—President Hoover's intervention in the German financial crisis was said in high diplomatic circles here Monday to have averted a strong likelihood of the overthrow of the present German government and the substitution of one composed of Communists or other elements.

Such a collapse in the German republic would have caused no surprise here had it been attended by revolutionary violence.

Second Dynamiter on Trial This Week

Identity of Those Who Plotted Destruction of Span Expected

TEXARKANA.—(P)—Identity of the "higher ups" who plotted destruction of the $500,000 state highway bridge over Red River at Garland City, Ark., just before the span was to be opened to traffic may be revealed in Miller circuit court here this week.

The answer to the question of who wanted the bridge destroyed is expected to come during the trial of Carl Bell, 24, of Ida, La., on a charge of dynamiting the structure.

As the principal state witness, Charley Brown, 28, of Lewisville, Ark., is expected to furnish the answer.

Brown already is under a five-year sentence on a charge of dynamiting the bridge, having been indicted with Bell. He pleaded guilty a few minutes after the indictments were returned.

Brown, testifying at Bell's preliminary hearing, attempted to name the alleged "higher ups," but was prevented by objections from both state and defense. State's attorneys contended this revelation would hinder them in their investigation.

The 304-foot center span of the new bridge was catapulted into the river in the early morning of September 3, 1930, by a series of explosions. Charges of dynamite had been placed under the "shoes" that held the span in place on the piers in such a manner as to rock the steel frame from the foundation.

At Bell's preliminary hearing, Brown said he and Bell were to have received $2,000 for the dynamiting, but that attempts to collect his share failed. He said his efforts to get his money resulted in him overhearing a plot between Bell and "two higher ups" to kill him.

Preferred Claim in Arkansas Bank Is Lost by County

Supreme Court Upholds Chancery Decree Calling It Common Deposit

ANOTHER DIVIDEND
Banking Department May Declare 4th Dividend of 10 Per Cent

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—The Arkansas Supreme Court Monday affirmed a decree of the Hempstead chancery court denying the claim of Hempstead county as a preferred depositor of the closed Arkansas Bank & Trust Co. at Hope.

Justice Mehaffey dissented. The county brought suit to recover $41,316.19 in county funds on the bank's books. Of this amount, $18,000 was held by the First National Bank, and $17,000 by the Citizens National Bank, both of Hope.

The theory on which the suit was brought was that the Arkansas Bank & Trust Co. became the county depository by reason of an unlawful agreement entered into between it and the other banks to stifle competitive bidding for the county funds. The legal effect of this, the opinion said, would have been to make the county claim a preferred one.

Cite Law of 1927

The appellate court reaffirmed the doctrine outlined in a similar case from Independence county, that the claim of a preferred depositor by reason of such an agreement had been abrogated by the act of 1927, which provided for the distribution of the entire assets of an insolvent bank.

Commenting on the act, the court said:

"Experience has shown us that the rights of general depositors are often impaired in the failing of insolvent banking institutions by reason of the preferences given to favored depositors, which the act in question sought to cure, and which could reasonably have been anticipated to work harm to their funds on deposit in such institutions as the policy of the law is to protect said funds by bonds executed by depository bonds securing the payment of public finances on demand."

Depository Bonds Failed

"The unfortunate situation in this case, as in many others recently arisen, is that the bonds given to secure public funds on deposit have proven insufficient."

A death sentence imposed upon Bubber Stanley, 18-year-old Fordyce negro youth, was reduced to five years' imprisonment by the supreme court. The court held that the evidence introduced at his trial was insufficient for a first degree murder conviction. Stanley was charged with slaying James Homer, white man who cooked in a cafe where Stanley was a dishwasher. Stanley claimed he killed the white man in self-defense.

Steve Carrigan, of Carrigan & Monroe, the county's attorneys, told The Star at noon Monday that they would file a motion for rehearing before the supreme court, but added that this is a usual formality.

The state banking department was represented in the suit by W. S. Atkins, of Atkins & Stewart, and the firm of Lemley & Lemley.

Since the beginning of liquidation under Mr. Atkins, the closed Arkansas Bank & Trust Co. has paid to depositors 30 per cent, of approximately $105,000. The liquidating agent has had on hand ever since the inception of the lawsuit an additional $35,000 garnished for the county's account.

The effect of the victory for the banking department in the supreme court, it is believed, will be to make a fourth 10 per cent dividend available at once.

Farmers Wife Is Gun Shot Victim

Husband Absolved of the Blame by Bride of Only Few Months

TEXARKANA.—Mrs. W. P. Porier, 19, died in Michael Meagher hospital at 5 a. m. Sunday from a bullet wound said to have been inflicted when a revolver was discharged accidentally Friday night while her husband was cleaning it at their home about a half mile south of Gepora.

The woman had been in a semi-conscious condition since being brought to the hospital shortly after the shooting. Whether or not an official investigation of the tragedy will be made was not definitely known Sunday night, although the wounded woman absolved her husband of all blame before she died.

"Will (her husband) didn't mean to shoot me," she is said to have whispered while in the hospital.

Porier said he was sitting directly in front of his wife cleaning his gun early Friday night when it discharged, striking his wife in the shoulder. The bullet ranged downward through her spine and lodged in her right side.

The man said he was not immediately aware that he had shot his wife. The bullet stunned the woman and blood appearing on her shoulder was the first evidence that she had been wounded.

Brought to the hospital here, the woman was paralyzed from the spinal wound and was able to talk only at intervals.

The Poriers had been married only about six months. The husband is 33 years old.

She is survived by her husband, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Caniney; one sister, Mrs. Eva Elkins; and one brother, Dewey Patterson.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a. m. Monday at Rock Springs, near Gepora, with Rev. Jennings of Fouke, and Rev. L. Westbrook, officiating.

gratitude of the republic. Mr. Hoover, said the German foreign minister, "has placed his finger on the sore spot and now comes one of those rare moments in history when all reserve should be thrown aside. I can only say that we endorse with unqualified joy the heroic declaration which President Hoover has made."

"Not only will it lighten our burdens, it will remedy the situation throughout the world."

"I don't care what people say about lower prices and suchlike economic factors—at the bottom of it all is lack of confidence. That is the decisive factor and Mr. Hoover has been quick to see it and to realize that that is where decisive action is needed."

Borah Goes Further

In the United States, other national leaders began to be heard from. Senator William E. Borah, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, told the Boise Idaho Statesman Monday morning that:

"It has been clear to me from the beginning that Germany could not pay the reparations assessed against her. They will have to be readjusted. If a moratorium is granted it will give time to see the situation as it is and time to adjust matters."

"I feel that the moratorium ought to be limited to one year. If within that time disarmaments are drastically reduced and reparations readjusted, recovery might well follow. But without disarmament and without readjustment of reparations, moratoriums simply postpone the day of disaster. Moratoriums are all right, but these other things must follow before there can be any thing but temporary relief in Europe."

"I am not overlooking the necessity for revision of the peace treaties but that will take time. Europe is not ready for that, but it will have to come."

First Actual Picture of Famous Mohammedan Shrine, in "Forbidden City" of Mecca, Shows Pilgrims at Worship

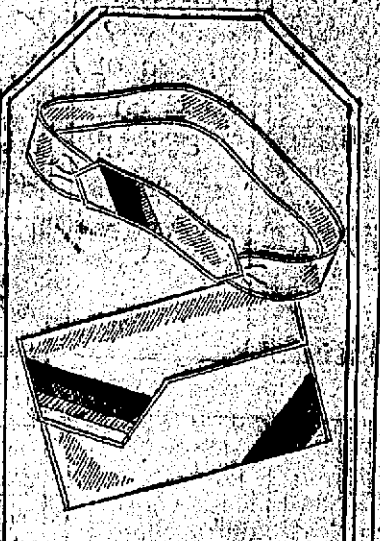

One of the most remarkable pictures ever taken is this view of a great throng of Mohammedans in the holy shrine at Mecca. Here for the first time an actual photograph has been made of the famous sanctuary which for more than 1300 years has been strictly guarded from the sight of all non-believers. Only in disguise and at the risk of their lives have a few Christians succeeded in entering the sacred city of Mecca, birthplace of the Prophet, in which this great inner shrine is located. Among the tens of thousands of persons shown within the stockaded enclosure are pilgrims from all over the world; for every Mohammedan whose means and health permit it bound to perform this rite at least once in his life. About 100,000 members of the faith visit the place during the month of pilgrimage each year. The huge black-looking object in the center of the crowd actually is a cube-shaped stone building which is the real

Kaaba, dating from pre-Islamic times and taken over into the new faith by Mohammed and designated as the House of Allah. It is covered with hangings of rich black brocade. In one corner is the famous Black Stone, venerated and kissed by all Mohammedans. The light-colored building at the left houses the sacred well of Zemzen, which also is the only well in Mecca. Behind the decorative gateway in the center of the picture is a pulpit from which the pilgrims are addressed.

At Memphis, Senator Keneth McKellar of Tennessee doubted whether America would get sufficient benefits from the moratorium. Calling attention to the mounting taxes, a billion-dollar federal deficit and nationwide unemployment, Senator McKellar said:

"How are we to be benefited by this gift to other peoples? If we give up $246,000,000 which the world concedes to be justly due us, we must make it good by putting additional tax burdens upon our own people."

Grove Saves Earnshaw in 9th—Ferrell Beats Washington

The Athletics made it three straight over the Chicago White Sox Sunday, winning 6 to 5. Bob (Lefty) Grove pulled George Earnshaw out of the fire after the big-right hander had been in trouble all afternoon, taking the mound in the ninth inning to stop a Chicago rally. Grove forced a pop fly for the second out, and fanned the last batter.

Earnshaw got credit for the victory. Although he allowed but seven hits, he walked nine men, struck one batter, and only his control with men on the base-lines enabled him to pull through until Grove staged his rescue act in the ninth.

Young Wesley Ferrell chalked up his 10th victory of the season by holding Washington to seven hits while Cleveland was winning the game, 3 to 1. The St. Louis Browns from their second-division position took a solid punch at the New York Yankees, beating them twice, in a double-header, 9-7 and 8-2. Babe Ruth got his 13th home run of the season, and his teammate Lou Gehrig hit his 14th. Boston defeated Detroit 7-6.

In the National League, the champion St. Louis Cardinals divided a double-header with the Boston Braves, losing the opener 8-2, but capturing the nightcap 1-0 behind the superb pitching of Burleigh Grimes, who limited the Braves to five hits.

Pittsburgh nosed out the New York Giants 5-4 in an 11-inning game. The Phillies rolled up 20 hits off three Cincinnati pitchers to smash the Reds 7 to 1. Brooklyn and Chicago wrestled for three hours over the rubber of a five-game series. Brooklyn finally winning 7-6, with Dazzy Vance on the mound.

HOOKS AND SLIDES

Shires Wins Friends

WE have a straight tip from Manning Vaughan, Milwaukee baseball writer, corroborated by Dick Cullum, Minneapolis baseball writer, that G. Arthur Shires, whom you may remember, has made a lot of friends in the American Association this year. They like the way he hustles—between verbs.

Grimes, Avenger

MR. MCGRAW, looking back upon a disastrous series with those Cardinals, probably wishes that instead of trading Mr. Grimes away that time he had shot him. Grimes, who is an avenging person with a flair for the dramatic, upset the Giants in a couple of games, winning one with a single, and then in the closing encounter pitched a scoreless inning to beat the McGrawian athletes. Mr. McGraw just can't keep Mr. Grimes out of his hair.

How to Win

CONDENSED in a few words, here is a whole book on how to win ball games: have airtight fielding, powerful pitching and timely hitting. It's a recipe being used with a fair degree of success this year by Connie Mack.

Gehring's Value

THE true worth of Charley Gehring, second baseman of the Tigers, was not realized until he had to be taken out of the game with a sore arm. Since then the Tigers have enjoyed nose-dives, body slams, back drops and jack knives. A pretty fair country second baseman.

I DON SEE threatens to make a wrestler out of his lion of flesh, Primo Carnera. For my part, that
